Pertinent Topics Discussed by H.C.

They who fear or hope that the Bren gun contract will hurt the government are disregarding the experience of recent years. Neither the Customs scandal nor the Beauharnois contributions did the government any harm. The people of Canada want money spent and are not very particular how it is spent. While that attitude of mind persists, there will be no popular reaction against improvident contracts.

During the debate in the Commons, a Quebec member said the object of the Opposition was to "get" the Deputy Minister of Defence because he is a French-Canadian. No one would be foolish enough to say the object was to get the Minister because he is a Scot or the contractor because he is of German descent. Anyone who would say such a thing would only make himself an object of derision and contempt, but Quebec members do it habitually, from which we must conclude that it has political value. It is up to the people of Quebec to resent this as an insult to their intelligence.

Hitler himself doesn't drink, but he will never be able to make Germany a teetotalitarian state.

Some journalists, when they ease their attack on Chamberlain for knuckling down to the dictators, accuse him of holding shares in a company that would profit by war. They have him in either event. If he avoids war it is by a cowardly betrayal of democracy; if war ensues, it is because he wants to cash coupons.

It need not have occasioned surprise that DeValera should have taken such drastic steps against the Irish Republican army which has been terrorizing England. About ten years ago we spent some time in the Irish Free State and heard the people talk about the war. We thought they meant the 1914-18 war, but they meant THE WAR between the Free Staters and the Republicans. That other war over in France and Belgium was no concern of theirs, and in Dublin we had seen a ruined Customs' building and a shattered Post Office that showed it was some war. The feeling was still intense, but the Free Staters had won and the Republicans talked in whispers against some things DeValera was doing, especially in insisting upon the "childher" having to learn Gaelic, although they would have to do the same if the Republicans had won.

The recrudescence of the Republican campaign is a threat to him as well as to the English. He aims at a united Ireland, but he is statesman enough to know that union cannot be brought about by force; that, in fact, terrorist activities only retard the union of the north and south, and so he helps to put an end to them. With both governments of Ireland and the government of Britain engaged in the work of ferreting out the criminals, there should be an early end to the dastardly, diabolical campaign now being waged.

The death of Pope Pius may (but we doubt) help to influence the world toward a saner and more tolerant way of life. He was opposed to those isms that would make individuals only cogs in a state machine, yet he had advanced views on two other isms as well.

In the Days of Auld Lang Syne

TEN YEARS AGO

Councillors elected in the M.D. of Royal were: Div. 3, R. S. Irwin; Div. 4, N. P. Jensen; Div. 5, Alex. Smith. A rink of Vulcan lady curlers took top honors in one event and second prize in another event at the Canmore bonspiel, winning seven games out of eight played. The rink was composed of Mrs. King (skip), Mrs. Beardsley, Mrs. Peterson, Mrs. McAaskie.

B. R. Lommatsch was installed as Exalted Ruler of the local Elks' lodge. Champion's new $15,000 community hall was formally opened that week.

Graham Elected M.D. Councillor In Close Race

Graham 51—Roebuck 50

A very keenly contested election in Division 1 of the Municipal District of Royal saw Fred T. Graham elected as councillor for that division, defeating Alfred Roebuck, the former councillor, by a single vote. Results of the balloting, as given out by returning officer William Munro, showed that Mr. Graham received 51 votes and Mr. Roebuck received 50 votes.

The 101 votes cast represent a heavy poll and indicate the great interest which was taken in the election. A. G. Spaeth was returned by acclamation as councillor for Division 2, and the other members of the municipal council are: Div. 3, F. E. Bennett (Reeve); Div. 4, G. D. Bateman; Div. 5, G. Gordon; Div. 6, W. M. Snow.

Regular Meetings of Vulcan and Thigh Hill Institutes

Vulcan W. I.

The members of the Vulcan Women's Institute met at the home of Mrs. R. Carruthers on Friday, Feb. 24, with eleven ladies present. President, Mrs. Jack Marshall, occupied the chair and the business was duly dealt with, including a discussion on the making and raffling of a cushion to raise funds.

Mrs. J. Marshall and Mrs. C. Lambert were appointed as delegates to attend the district conference in Calgary on March 2-3. Mrs. B. Brown gave a very interesting paper on the work and accomplishments of the Women's Institutes and the good that can be derived from demonstrations of handicraft and from numerous other sources. Mrs. King extended a very hearty vote of thanks to Mrs. Brown for her very enlightening paper.

A quiz contest conducted by Mrs. Marshall was won by Mrs. Brown and the tea gift went to Mrs. R. Robson. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. E. King on March 31. A very dainty lunch was served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Monkman. All members are requested to attend the next meeting, as a report of the district conference will be given.

Thigh Hill W. I.

Mrs. L. Clifford was hostess at the February meeting of the Thigh Hill Women's Institute and a good number of ladies were in attendance.

Mrs. E. R. Kuykendall reported on the Vulcan rest room. Plans were made to entertain the 1938 members and their husbands at a hot supper and social evening on March 31 at the home of Mrs. F. M. Maiden. Mrs. Z. Deal volunteered to act as delegate to the district conference at Calgary.

Grinders' Defeat Twisters 5 to 4

The Marble Coffee Grinders hockey machine was successful in its second game of the season against the Central Nut Twisters, defeating the garage men by a close 5-4 score. Four short periods were played and the play was fast and furious throughout in the Monday night fixture. A good crowd of spectators was present to cheer the teams on.

The Grinders' goals were scored by Sinclair, Wray, Ottewill, Granlie, A. Gering. Goal-scoring for the Twisters were Nicol (2), McDonald and Clark.

Line-up

Coffee Grinders—C. Gering; L. Leverington, E. Arnold, C. Snow, L. Ottewill; L. Granlie, J. D. Wray, W. Sinclair, D. Stuart, A. Gering, S. Braunsworth.

Great Interest in High School Bonspiel; Greene and Allan Win

Great Enthusiasm Displayed As 15 High School Rinks Compete; May Become Annual Event

Great interest and enthusiasm was displayed in the high school bonspiel staged at the rink on Saturday last, with fifteen rinks of high school students and teachers competing. The primary event was won by Donald Greene's rink and the consolation event was won by Margaret Allan's rink. All games were eight ends.

In winning the primary event and thus capturing the major honors of the 'spiel the Greene rink had to come through with a count on the last end to win. Their opponents, skipped by Harris Matlock, led 6-5 up until the last end when the Greene-skipped rink tallied five points to win the game 10-6. The winning rink: Donald Greene (skip), Murray Fisher, Neil Almon, Ken Kuykendall.

Margaret Allan's rink, skipped by Billy Lucas, won by a single point margin when they defeated Ronnie Marshall's rink in the final game of the consolation event, the score being 8-7. The winning rink: Margaret Allan, Billy Lucas, Norman Twiss, Marie Johnston.

Primary Event

Going into the eights, Greene beat

Parsons, J. Ulrich beat Allan, Roe beat Ferguson, Myers beat McFarlane, Pedersen beat Marshall, Matlock beat Campbell, Martin beat Snow, and A. Ulrich received a bye. Going into the fours, Greene beat L. Ulrich, Myers beat Roe, Matlock beat Pedersen, Martin beat M. Ulrich. In the semi-finals, Greene beat Myers and Matlock beat Martin, Greene defeating Matlock in the final game.

Consolation Event

Going into the fours, Allan beat Parsons, McFarlane beat Ferguson, Marshall beat Campbell and Snow beat M. Ulrich. In the semi-finals, Allan beat McFarlane and Marshall beat Snow, Allan defeating Marshall in the final game.

Due to the interest taken in the bonspiel, both by the participants and the spectators, it is thought likely that the high school 'spiel will become an annual event.

The Advocate has been asked by the school students to convey to the curling club their appreciation of the club's courtesy in letting the students use the ice. Thanks is also extended to the club members who helped arrange the bonspiel and otherwise assisted.

The Franco victory in Spain is now officially recognized.

At the end of the first four ends each rink had seven points and the final score was Lebeau 22, Anderson 16, a total of 38 points. An odd feature of the game was that Jack Anderson and Cliff McAaskie are members of the Lebeau rink, while their fathers, Fred Anderson and Pete McAaskie, were on the opposing rink. The big score was amassed in a regular game in the Royal Hotel Cup draw.

Present Winter Like That of 1928-29

Perfect spring-like weather, with enough frost at nights to allow hockey skating and curling to be carried in full swing, has been the order of the day in recent weeks and the only complaint heard is of insufficient snow.

With the hardest months of the winter over and spring rapidly drawing near, residents can look back on what has been a remarkably mild winter. Looking back over the Advocate files, the nearest parallel we can find to this winter is that of 1928-29, just ten years ago. During that season hardly any snow or cold weather was experienced until New Year's and, from the records, it seems to have been very much like the winter just now drawing to a close, with the occasional short cold spell interspersing long periods of mild weather.

This district can usually look forward to a good blizzard in March, when King Winter makes his last gesture, but even if we should experience a blizzard this month it will not detract from the fact that we have enjoyed an exceptionally mild and open winter.

Editors Object To Montreal Terminal

One hundred and eighty-four Canadian editors have answered the questionnaire sent by the Citizens' Group for Railway Action regarding the projected Montreal terminal for the exclusive use of the Canadian National.

A digest of the comments of the editors has been sent to Prime Minister King and Transport Minister Howe. Editors were identified only as to number and province. The digest now has been published in pamphlet form and is available to any citizen who cares to write to the Citizens' Group for Railway Action.

The editors voted six to one against the expenditure, and said that if it was justified as a relief measure, the station built should be a union station.

Railroad leaders and all engineers are agreed that the tunnel site could not, except at vast expense, be converted into a union station.

Reading of Books

The reading of books is an art, and if one learns to read with all the senses a much greater measure of enjoyment can be obtained. The music of words is as real as the music of a song. Say slowly a few lines of Shakespeare, or a few verses of the Psalms, giving each word its full value, and the words will make music in your brain. It seems to me that when we learn to appreciate the beauty of words rightfully placed, our speech will become better, not so slangy and slipshod. The unhurriedly courted speech of a few centuries ago may well be "pre-machine" age—but trying to time our speech to the speed of the age is really rather detrimental to our mode of expressing ourselves. "Bridget" in Lacombe Globe.

Dr. Fleming (Lib.) M.P., of Sask., urged his government to slash international combines that are holding up implement and gas prices. He said: "I say to the Liberal government that if they do not do something for Western Canada by reducing these prices, and increasing the price of primary products, there will be a revolt when the government goes to the country."

PAY FOR COUNCILLORS

THE experience of a number of small towns in Alberta this year, has been an embarrassing lack of aspirants for civic position. Nobody craved office, either on council or school board. In a preponderant number of places, elections were by acclamation, which signifies either satisfaction or indifference on the part of ratepayers.

This reluctance to assume the responsibilities of councillor is a new situation in the experience of many a town. Hitherto there has always been someone who felt that he could do a better job than his predecessors, or was at any rate, prepared to give his time and ability in the interests of the town. Now it appears that there are few who are even willing to try.

To some extent at least, this is the natural result of the general ratepayer attitude toward civic officials. Anyone taking such office must face the fact that he is going to have plenty of criticism no matter what he does or refuses to do. Commendation is rare, criticism is much less rare. Then when the annual meeting comes up, which ratepayers are invited to attend to voice their views, there are perhaps no more than half-a-dozen faithfuls in attendance.

The taxpayer whose protests have boomed most loudly on the streets, very rarely makes his appearance. Nor does he attend the occasional council meeting as he should do.

The councillor attends meetings once at least every fortnight, and between times is always on call for any emergency which may develop in his department. Then he prepares his final summary of his year's record, giving considerable time to the work, and is rewarded with no audience. It does not seem to be an office which brings compensating returns. Moreover the emoluments of office which used to fall to a town official are negligible. In by-gone days, he could divert quite an amount of town revenue, toward the business by which he made his living. But the public has grown very alert to any such "velvet" and rigorous regulations prevent his benefitting through public office.

The revolt of potential council material from taking an office so apparently empty of reward is not surprising. It brings up the suggestion that town councillors should be paid, as municipal councillors are paid. The responsibility of safeguarding the taxpayer, and distributing revenue for general benefit, has surely monetary value. There is also under prevailing conditions, that unanswerable argument "They are working for the town for nothing. What right has anyone to criticize?" If they were at least getting a reasonable fee, for attending council meetings, the public would feel less guilty in offering criticism.

Strangely enough, it has been the experience of most towns that the governing body has given very capable service and given it as conscientiously as if they had been highly paid. But that has been merely good fortune. It is not contended that the calibre of councillors would be any higher, or the service better if they were paid a fee for attending meetings. But it is a more business-like basis on which to operate town affairs.

THE McCULLAGH MESSAGE

ACCORDING to comments that are heard round and about, the western public has not been very seriously impressed by the McCullagh broadcasts. There has been rather too much abuse of the C.B.C. and publicity for the Mail and Globe interspersed through the plans for the rehabilitation of Canada. The very vehemence and continuation of Mr. McCullagh's attack on the C.B.C. has perhaps defeated the effort to stir up censure. After all, he has made himself widely heard over stations at his disposal.

Everyone is in accord with him on the need of curbing the extravagances of governments. But there does not seem unanimity of agreement with his suggestion of eliminating provincial legislatures. There is doubt as to how much attention the west would get if the only major government were established in Ottawa, next door to Montreal and Toronto. Certainly the three prairie provinces could well be united as one, but Ottawa is very far away from the country west of the great lakes, in understanding as well as in geographical location.

The "roused electorate" to which Mr. McCullagh appeals, is already roused to the serious weaknesses which he presented so forcefully. It is roused to the extent that it is bewildered and distrustful. It may not doubt the sincere desire on the part of all party leaders to bring about certain basic reforms. But it is disgusted with the dreary round of bickering on questions which are very trivial. At a time when the whole force of parliament should be concentrated on two or three vitally important national problems, time is wasted in debate which serves no apparent purpose.

The public has reasons to doubt any fulfilment of rosy pre-election promises. Mr. McCullagh puts it up to the individual voter to demand better government and thus achieve it. But there is a wide gap between demanding and achieving. How is the voter to register his sentiments by way of his ballot? It is probable that every candidate, speaking before elections, will espouse some of Mr. McCullagh's practical suggestions. But what will he do after he is elected? His fine fury may give way to party expediency, or the crusader may be smothered under limitations which he had not realized beforehand.

The Canadian public has developed a great, and perhaps deplorable, skepticism under the boredom of too much speaking. There is no need to tell the people what is wrong with government. But there is need to dwell more insistently and constructively on a cure—a cure, not for certain interests and certain sections, but one that will embrace all Canada. And after that, it will require great ability to convince the skeptical public that these cures can and will be effected.

BEST PLAYGROUND IN WORLD

LORD TWEEDSMUIR wrote a foreword for a booklet issued recently by the Canadian Travel Bureau. He said that Canada is not only the national playground of North America, but the best playground of the world. And in supporting that observation, he enlarged upon the national parks situated in Alberta.

Such a recommendation, sent out by the Canadian government to all parts of the world, attracts attention to the great national parks, which are fortunately located in this province. Alberta is the front entry to these "best playgrounds in the world," and the realization of this happy position should be foremost in Alberta consciousness all the time.

Particularly it should be in the consciousness of all government departments, which are in any degree connected with tourist attractions. All highways, connecting or entering parks should be of uniform excellence from Alberta boundaries to park gates. The natural beauties along the route should be preserved, and all old landmarks or historic spots should be well marked. Road signs should be clear and frequent. Everything possible, at increased expenditure if necessary, should be done to restock fishing streams and lakes, to conserve wild game, and to increase game birds. The expenditure would be infinitesimal, in comparison with inevitable returns.

Alberta charm lies in natural attractions and anything which can be done to enhance or increase these natural attractions is a solid investment.

The Banff carnival is a type of event that can be built up as a winter sports gathering of ever widening scope. Anything of this nature deserves the support of the far-seeing Alberta public. Individuals, communities and government should keep tourist possibilities ever in view. The Rocky Mountain parks are the finest in Canada, and the driveway to the parks is through Alberta.

Conservatives Behind Unity Move

Provincial Support for Unity Movement Assured at Provincial Convention

With 250 Conservatives gathered in convention at Calgary, a resolution was carried supporting the Unity movement. With about 75% of a majority, a resolution carried that no Conservative candidates would be nominated in the next provincial election.

It was not the intention to dissolve its identity, but was a case of putting welfare before party, according to one speaker.

R. W. Ward of Calgary, was elected president of the Alberta branch of the Conservative Association in Alberta, with Dr. M. A. McIntyre, Edmonton; Dr. H. M. Elliott, Swallow, and Sir Arthur Stonehouse, Pine Lake, vice-presidents. The executive includes one member from each federal constituency. About 100 Calgaryans and 150 out-of-town delegates attended.

Included in the resolution supporting the Unity movement was the recommendation that the leader, Mr. Duggan and the executive be instructed to confer with the Unity Council and other political parties to determine the most effective means to ensure the election of an efficient government.

Wheat Board

The resolution on the wheat board favored its immediate resumption, as operated under the Bennett government, and assurance of a fair price for agriculture and livestock. Regret also that Premier King had sacrificed the British 6 cent wheat preference.

Another resolution urged the constitutional right of the Dominion government to deal with financial industrial and social problems.

Cradle of Party Politics

R. L. Maitland, K.C., Vancouver, said men who have led the people in Britain and Canada have been born in the cradle of party politics.

The only alternative to party government was individual members sitting in a parliament constructed only of their individual lives. This led to dissension and lack of co-operation.

Support For Leaders

"To get behind a great leader of a great party is the successful way to carry out the development of a great country."

Whether a party be Conservative or Liberal, CCF or Social Credit, unless it has the welfare of Canada above patronage and party politics it deserves to fail, Mr. Maitland declared.

Referring to the convention's support of the Unity Movement, he emphasized that while they were for the time being subordinating the party it would not lose its identity in this province. Such action might be necessary in case of national emergency, or when some government that was setting the country back needed to be eliminated.

Resolutions were passed by the convention dealing with agriculture, and condemning the Liberal government's wheat policy; affirming the necessity of readjustment of debts; advocating establishment of a system of youth training "on an adequate basis across Canada," under the control of a minister appointed to the federal cabinet for that purpose.

The convention condemned the lack of action on the part of the King government in dealing with unemployed and labor problems, and recorded the conviction that "the drastic and unconstitutional legislation of the Aberhart government has crippled industry in the province, delayed the solution of our housing problem, and has thereby brought about increased unemployment."

Resignation of H. R. Milner, K.C., of Edmonton from the presidency of the Alberta Conservative Association, brought regretful comment from all sides. Mr. Milner has served as president for the past nine years, and has devoted much time to the interests of the party. Pressure of business has caused his retirement.

In his address he pointed out that supporting unity does not involve dissolution of the Conservative party.

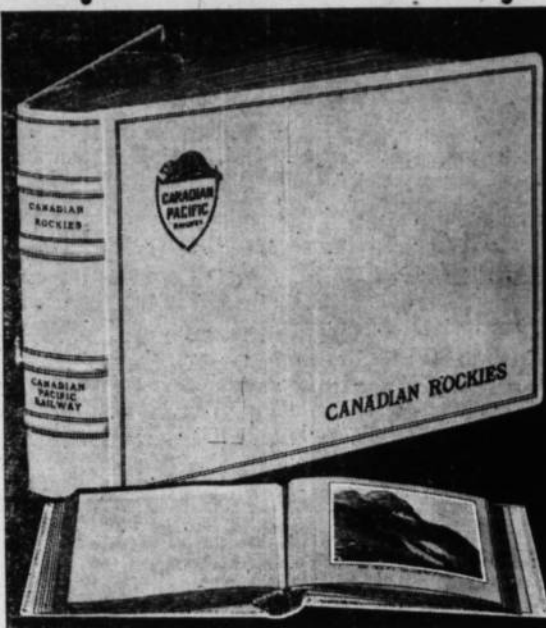

"Under the present peculiar situation in Alberta, it is advisable in the public and national interest, and in the interest of the party as a whole, that we co-operate with other persons of goodwill who are interested in the country above any party."

"We will continue to exercise our interest in this province, and if unity should fall down, the Conservatives will take up the cudgels again."

During the recent world crisis, where the issue of whether democracies should continue to exist or Fascism should dominate became apparent, Prime Minister Mackenzie King declared no stand Mr. Milner said.

Dr. Manion, as leader of the minority, could not speak for the Canadian people. Anything he said would have been an embarrassment to the governments of Canada and Britain. But if the situation should arise again, Dr. Manion would certainly stand where

Pope Pius XI and Canadian Rockies

In his earlier days the late Pope Pius XI achieved considerable fame as a mountaineer and scaled most of the well-known Alpine peaks. After his accession to the Papal Throne he one day told a party of Canadians visiting in Rome that he had always been interested in the Canadian Rockies and that at one time he had hoped to visit them. There were several mountains there, he said, that he would very much have liked to climb.

The fates directed his path to other heights culminating in the Chair of St. Peter, but the story was brought back to Canada and at the direction of Sir Edward Beatty a collection of photographs of the Rockies was bound together in a handsome portfolio of white calf-skin and presented to His Holiness with the compliments of the Canadian Pacific Railway. Sir Edward received a most courteous and kindly acknowledgment which is now preserved in the Company's archives.

Mossleigh News

A most enjoyable evening was spent at the Trego school last Wednesday evening when the Mossleigh Young People's Society held their regular meeting. At the conclusion of the business section of the meeting a play was read, followed by a delightful version of "Ferdinand, the Bull," given by Miss Doris Standley. The rest of the evening was spent in playing games, concluding with a lunch. The next meeting, March 8, will be in the form of a skating party, weather permitting. If the weather does not permit, it will be held as a social evening at the Trego school. Keen interest is being aroused in the Mossleigh district where a test for oil is under way. Mr. E. Anderburg, driller, of Hussar is in charge.

Doing a good deed last Sunday cost one local resident a car window. While travelling on the Vulcan highway he stopped to pick up a hitch-hiker who accidentally put his elbow through the window while closing the door.

Covers were laid for thirteen at the home of Mrs. W. Hagedorn on Feb. 25, when she entertained at a turkey dinner on the occasion of Bruce Gateman's fourth birthday. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. N. Gateman and family, Mr. and Mrs. N. Kilpatrick and family, and Mr. and Mrs. L. Martin.

St. Valentine arrived a few days early at the Gateman's this year, leaving a new V. 8 coach.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Leslie arrived home last week after a seven weeks' honeymoon spent in Vancouver and western U.S.A. They visited with many old friends and report a very enjoyable trip but were glad to get home.

Mr. Clyde Journey has been seriously ill at his home. We all wish him a speedy recovery.

We were sorry to lose one of our business men, Mr. Charlie Segal, who sold his store to Mr. Turner of Brooks. The Segals opened up the first general store in Mossleigh. After selling out they left for Montreal, where they expect to visit for some time.

A wild and woolly hockey game was played at Mossleigh last Thursday when our local juniors undertook to give the Herronton Juniors a trouncing but the visitors were too much for them taking them to the count of 5 to 4.

The Catholic Women's Altar Society of Arrowwood sponsored a dance held at Mossleigh last Friday, Feb. 17. A large crowd attended, reporting a good time.

Alex. Walker, provincial president of the Canadian Legion said that the Command had definite information that men of military age were being ordered back to Germany.

capitalism and industrialism. He stood out against the isms that threatened constitutional governments; he was liberal, almost radical, in his views respecting social reform. It was his unhappy fate to live at a time when different ideologies were developing that now threaten to divide the world into two or three camps. He strove valiantly for peace and for the protection of religious communities but in the Austrian crisis he was badly served by Cardinal Innitzer who did not have to wait long to repent his Anschluss activities.

Sir Ian Hamilton regards it as a capital error for Britain to tie herself up so closely with France. Commanding the British expedition to Gallipoli, he recalls how France declined to allow sufficient forces to leave the western front to make that "side-show" a success. Naturally, of course, France was looking to her own immediate security as she has been doing ever since. She has not always been so solicitous about her ally's security. When Britain, at the Washington Conference, tried to place a limitation upon submarines, France joined with Japan and Italy in opposition, and the American military and naval experts advised their civilian delegation that they too, needed submarines. Why they needed them is not apparent, but their representations turned the scale against Britain. France's opposition then embarrasses herself now, by hobbling Britain on her defence of their common interests.

A fact-finding organization in the United States, called the Twentieth Century Fund, has reported to President Roosevelt that executive salaries in many industries still remain too high, in some cases $1000 a day. Even where a business is unable to pay dividends, executive salaries do not suffer reduction. As Elihu Root once said "Some day, some one will say, something to somebody." The President, who has some appreciation of his own abilities and responsibilities, is the man who ought to say it, and this is what he ought to say: "Henceforth, no other executive in these United States shall be paid a higher salary than I and my successors are paid."

We need hardly tell the President that any other executives drawing two or three times his salary have more leisure than he. They do not have to suffer fools, gladly or otherwise. They have more time for golf and travel. They meet with their directors once a month or so, and once a year they have a meeting of shareholders which lasts an hour or two. These are not like Mr. Roosevelt's shareholders who are hard to please and many of them in a nagging mood. They do not need to have fireside chats over the radio to keep their shareholders in good humor. They and the directors do pretty much as they please and can raise their salaries and fees at will, whereas the President's salary is fixed by statute. Altogether, the life of an industrial executive is one grand, sweet song as compared with that of the nation's chief executive.

Items From Bob Edwards' Inimitable Eye Opener

The indelicate Doukhobours; the biggest liar in Canada; the Englishman mourns his lot in the colonies, Bob Edwards soothes him

Those Doukhobour ladies round Yorkton who think it necessary to take off their clothes and march athwart the scene in order to be strictly religious, would do well to keep, far, far away from High River, until the present moral wave has broken on the rockbound shore.

The High River polo warriors have been in Calgary this week taking part in the polo tournament which spreads over four days. Like the crusaders in their expedition against the Turks, they were bent of conquest. It might be called "A wild-like game pursued with curious sublimity."

"They say," the biggest liar in Canada or any other country. Gullible and weak-minded yaps are invariably the prey of the "They say" artists. They swallow any old piece of gossip when prefaced with "they say." Inquire into the identity of "they" and no satisfactory answer is forthcoming. This is due usually to fear of being compelled to make their words good. Recourse to this trick of piling the onus of a lot of malice on to the shoulders of a mythical "they" is a sign of moral timidity.

The Englishman Complains Editor of Eye Opener.

Dear Sir:—Permit me to lay a few facts before you. Some time ago while still in England, I saw an article saying Calgary was an ideal place for an Englishman and easy for him to obtain work. Now here is my experience. I arrived in Canada a year ago and worked for a farmer in Ontario. He was a fair specimen of Canadian, as in his estimation the Scottish-Canadian owned Canada and won the Boer war. I stood his yams for a month, and then struck Calgary, a thing I have regretted ever since. If I am not mistaken, Calgary is run by English capital and the C.P.R. The C.P.R. will employ Galicians, Doukhobours and Chinese, but an Englishman stands no chance. I have as little love for the Canadian and his pals, the Galicians and Chinese, as he has for me. I am always hearing that Englishmen come here for what they can get. Isn't that what we are all after—except of course, Mr. Bennett, who has been striving always for the honor of his country.

Mr. Editor, can you not open the eyes of those in Calgary to the drawbacks of enticing Englishmen here without a cent? Canada is a glorious country, and there is room for thousands of men with capital, but room for few without. Men can get work in the summer but the winter is hard. I'll own there are a few dubious specimens of Englishmen in Calgary, but between you and me, they are here because they won't have them in England.

(Signed)—A Darned Englishman The Soft Answer

Well do we know from bitter experience how this young man feels. But what can he do in the way of work? What line of work is he familiar with? What the average Englishman of a certain class knows (and Scotsmen, too) is that he is the victim of a rotten educational system. He has a smattering of Latin and a fainter smattering of Greek, and after all Cree and Sarcee would be more serviceable. He also has a slight dribble of French verbs and pronouns; a confused knowledge of mathematics and algebra promptly forgotten; enough arithmetic to figure a sum in simple interest, and an acquaintanceship with history, which consists of silly anecdotes about equally silly kings and queens of by-gone age—and no knowledge of book-keeping.

But the possibility of having to work some day with his hands never seems to occur to him and his parents. Then some day he is shipped off to some colony—any old colony. "Poor, dear Harry will do so well in the colonies," remarks his family. "He is so fond of riding, you know!"

But in this country a man must not fall into the habit of lying round cussing the country and his ill luck. By dint of hustling, one can generally find some kind of work, after which it is easier to get a better job. Employers do not like young men who have been idle for a long period. In other words your ship will not come in unless you go out with a tug to meet it.

Here and There In Other Papers

Dictatorship

Dictatorship, with its brutality, its callousness, its duplicity, has painted an indelible picture for all to see—and it has been seen and marked well. As a result, democratic nations are drawing closer together; people who had been toying with the idea that totalitarianism might produce a satisfactory efficiency have been rudely disillusioned; a new respect for democracy appears to be dawning among those whose ideas have gone to the extreme left. Socialist thought and word are leaning more towards the democratic system as the proper and peaceful way of developing the ideas which Socialism advocates.—Cowichan Leader.

Cause and Cure

Members of Parliament are after all only human, and they naturally wish to retain their jobs. They realize that if they are to do so, they must please the people, or in other words, they must get something for their constituents. In the majority of cases if they don't do so, they will be turned out, and someone put in who will be freer with the public money.

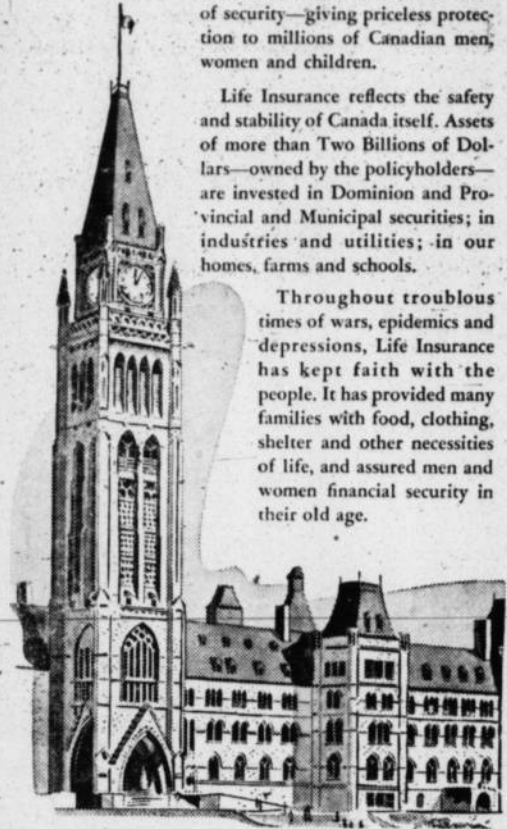

The remedy lies with the people themselves. In a democratic country no government can cure the ills of the country, unless the people support them wholeheartedly and actively in their efforts to do so. Moreover, no government would continue lavish spending if public opinion were united in active opposition. What we need, today, is a complete revolution in our thinking. We must learn to live within our national income. In other words, we must not demand expenditure which the country as a whole cannot afford to pay. If we fail to do this, we will have proved our incapacity to govern ourselves. On the other hand, if we did this, governments would be encouraged to balance budgets and reduce taxation. Capital would be encouraged to invest, and the country as a whole would go forward together. Most important of all, democracy
